

Input Tokens

Automatic text summarisation aims to produce a brief but comprehensive version of one or multiple documents. Extractive and abstractive summarisation involves selecting key sentences from the original document while abstractive summarisation involves creating new language based on the important information and requires a deeper understanding of the content.

Automatic text summarisation aims to produce a brief but comprehensive version of one or multiple documents. Extractive and abstractive summarisation involves selecting key sentences from the original document while abstractive summarisation involves creating new language based on the important information and requires a deeper understanding of the content.